GERMAN OPINION OF GLADSTONE.

The Berlin correspondent of the London Daily News, announces that the Vossische Zeitung, the leading organ of the advanced Liberals of that city contains an editorial article entitled GLADSTONE, which deserves attention at the present moment. The writer says: "We must look back to the English revolutionary period in the seventeenth century to find in Cromwell an English statesman who so completely places all contemporary political men in the shade as Mr. GLADSTONE does in the England of to-day. And even the rest of Europe contains at this moment only one equal of the British Premier. This preponderant position in the political machinery of his own state is, however, the sole resemblance which might tempt one to draw a parallel between Mr. GLADSTONE and his German contemporary, Prince BISMARCK, or his English predecessor, the Lord Protector. For while the latter two show a great number of similar traits in their government and its influence on European politics, Mr. GLADSTONE's merits lie in an entirely different field of action, and his greatness bears an impress of a totally different kind. He has not given a new form of state to a nation after the fighting out a civil war, nor has he humiliated foreign enemies; but his laurels have been acquired in the peaceable, though not peaceful, combat, which must be carried on in the halls of parliament and on the tribunes of the country in order to make room for political progress. He has known how to extend the old forms of the Parliamentary body politic, and to fill them with the spirit of liberty of modern times. He has led his people forward on the path of self-deliverance from ancient prejudices, from narrow spirit of caste and national arrogance and selfishness. He does not owe his position to outward means of force, but to his own worth, and its constant preservation is insured by the power of conviction he displays for his reform ideas and by the measure of conviction with which the British nation receives his arguments. In now putting this instance to the severest trial he endows the present elections with a peculiar incentive. To see an old man in his seventy-seventh year undertake, with youthful fire and good prospects of success, the struggle—not so much with single opponents, for not one of them is half way his equal in mental capacities—but rather with the historical prejudices of his people, from whom he demands an act of renunciation as has never yet been granted by any nation in the full enjoyment of its powers—this, we say, is a historical event, alone of its kind, which will confer eternal honor on its originator."

U. S. POSTAL REVENUES.

The effect of the reduction of the rate of letter postage to two cents per ounce in the United States has been very marked upon the condition of the postal revenue of that country. The total number of adhesive postage stamps issued during the fiscal year ended on June 30, 1886, was 1,632,708,771, representing a value of $7,064,631; and of postal cards, 355,648,000, representing a value of $32,800,579; of stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, 353,948,000, representing a value of $3,558,970. The total number of registered package and official envelopes issued was 42,078,650. As compared with the issues of the preceding year there was an increase in adhesive postage stamps of 152,197,781, or 10.2 per cent. in number, and of $2,015,253, or 6.5 per cent. in value; in stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, 31,196,700 or 9.6 per cent. in number, and of $784,668, or 12.5 per cent. in value, and in postal cards 16,231,500, or 4.8 per cent. in number, and $163,005, or 4.8 per cent. in value, making a total increase of 199,625,981, or 9.3 per cent. in number, and $2,962,926, or 7.3 per cent. in value. The total cost of the manufacture of these articles was $1,048,590.40, an increase of only $9,879.24, or less than 1 per cent., while the increase in the total number of articles was nearly 10 per cent. In postage stamps, postal cards and registered packages and official envelopes there was a decrease of $56,390.24 in the expenditure, notwithstanding there was an increase in the number of articles furnished, as compared with the preceding year, of 179,754,081. In stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers, the prices of which are the same, there was an increase in the expenditure of $66,269.48, or 10.5 per cent., the new contract recently let at greatly reduced rates not going into effect until October 1.

The emigration from Great Britain to Canada continues to increase substantially. In the month of June the number reported as having departed for the Dominion was 4,222 as against 3,065 in the corresponding month last year, and in the first half of this year 15,356 persons sailed from the United Kingdom to Canada, or 2,379 more than in 1885. The increase is largest in the outflow from England. Australia, on the other hand, is not doing as well this year as Canada in securing immigration from the mother country.

Fathers of our Country.

The Early Pioneers for Confederation—Who they Were and What they Achieved.

Those Opposed to the Union—The Yale Convention—Change in Public Opinion.

At present it is easy for many of our superloyalists to shout "all hail" to Canada's Prime Minister. The day is not very remote when those who to-day are loudest in their protestations of loyalty to Canada and Britain's flag entertained very different opinions and feelings. Occasionally it serves a good purpose to dish up a little history to refresh one's memory of what transpired in the past. The most interesting history that can be read is that relating to our own country, and the personages who figured in moulding its destinies.

Those who, in early days inaugurated a scheme for bringing about confederation, are deserving of the thanks and gratitude of the people and the government of Canada. Then it was unpopular to pronounce in favor of Canada; in fact the leaders in the movement were, in many instances, boycotted by Colonial officials and brainless mobs. To-day many of these are the most blatant shouters to be met with in this province.

In order that the new comers, and such as are not familiar with the early history of this country to-day we give a few items of interest to such as may desire a posting on who were the pioneers in the move for Confederation.

THE DECLARATION.

We the undersigned hereby constitute ourselves a political association to promote confederation with Canada, and secure representative institutions for British Columbia, and pledge ourselves to use all the constitutional means in our power to secure the immediate admission of British Columbia into the Dominion of Canada, on terms equitable and expedient, and also to establish in British Columbia without delay representative constitutions, with responsible government; and also to support the following constitution, and all business transacted in conformity thereto.

The constitution contained 19 clauses. The association was known as the "Confederate League." Any person upon signing the declaration could become a member. The fee was 25 cents per month. The constitution provided for the election of officers, such as a president, vice-president, a recording and financial secretary; an executive committee consisting of six members and a sergeant-at-arms. The constitution specified the duties of the officers and the times of meeting, which was on the first Monday of every month. A provision was made for the application of similar organizations throughout the province.

The following gentlemen, a considerable majority of whom are still alive and yet taking an active part in public affairs, signed the declaration and are known as the fathers of confederation in British Columbia. Amongst the names of the signers will be found those of many who have since "joined the majority." It will be observed that Hon. Mr. DeCosmos is now the senior of the men who then battled for confederation; he is followed on the roll by Messrs. I. W. Powell and Robt. Wallace, our postmaster. In signing each named the street in which he resided. Following is the list:

FIRST MEETING OF THE LEAGUE.

The first meeting of the League was held in Smith's Hall, in this city on the 21st May, 1868. Dr. Trimble at that meeting on motion of Messrs. De Cosmos and Wallace was appointed chairman and Mr. Robt. Beaven secretary. At this meeting the declaration and constitution was adopted and the League duly organized. Dr. Trimble was subsequently elected president; Capt. Stamp, I. W. Powell and J. F. McCreight, vice-presidents; Robert Beaven was elected recording secretary; J. G. Norris, financial secretary. The executive committee elected then were: Messrs. Wallace, Gowen, Gibbs, De Cosmos, Fox and Pearkes. W. H. Thain was elected sergeant-at-arms.

At another meeting a resolution was carried to the effect that immediate correspondence be opened with Messrs. John Robson, New Westminster; Dr. Brouse and F. J. Barnard, Yale; Wm McWha, Lytton; E. W. Foster, Lillooet; J. A. Mara, Big Bend; N. Hicks, Kootenay; R. Dunsmuir, Nanaimo; D. W. Gordon, Comox; J. P. Booth, Salt Spring Island; Dr. Carroll, Cariboo. Replies were received from these gentlemen favorable to the scheme.

Messrs. De Cosmos and Beaven were appointed a committee to draft and prepare for publication and distribution printed matter relative to the object of the League. Mr. De Cosmos was instructed to visit the mainland as the accredited representative of the League for the purpose of organizing branches and explaining its object.

A resolution was carried authorizing the committee to communicate with the government of Canada, explaining the attitude of the government here on the question of confederation, and the consequent organization of the Confederate League. All correspondence was instructed to be transacted through the Recording Secretary.

THE YALE CONVENTION.

In August, of 1868, steps were taken to hold a convention of delegates at Yale. It was found a matter of great difficulty to induce people to be present. Various excuses were raised by prominent men, whose names had been suggested as delegates, pleading inability to attend.

It was finally moved by Mr. M. W. Gibbs and seconded by J. F. McCreight, that in the opinion of this committee a convention of delegates from the different districts in the colony should be held at Yale at an early season for the purpose of accelerating the confederation of this colony with the Dominion of Canada, and also for the purpose of obtaining such changes to the present system of government as may be deemed desirable. The inhabitants of the district were asked to select delegates to attend the convention. The city delegation consisted of Messrs. McCreight, Powell, DeCosmos, Wallace, Gibbs, Norris and McMillan. Capt. Wm. Irving intimated that he would give free transportation to the delegates selected.

The Victoria League had received encouraging letters from many prominent colonists in favor of confederation, as well as from citizens of the eastern provinces, amongst others being one from the then Hon. S. L. Tilley, addressed to Dr. Powell, approving of the movement.

BECOMING UNPOPULAR.

The League was now accomplishing solid work for confederation. Many prominent leading citizens became hostile to the scheme. Those taking a prominent part in bringing about a change, determining to replace the Colonial government by a responsible government were considered as enemies to the colony and especially so to many who held office under the Colonial regime. The leagners, however, persevered in their work and at last succeeded in getting the Yale convention as an accomplished fact.

THE CONVENTION ASSEMBLES.

The famous Yale convention met on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 14th, 15th and 16th of September, 1868. There were present 35 delegates all prominent men belonging to the united colony of British Columbia and Vancouver Island. Many of these delegates have taken their departure to the undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns, and many yet remain sculling their little canoes about on the surface of the political waters—Federal and Provincial.

The Yale convention was a grand affair; parliamentary rules and orders strictly adhered to. It was held in the old Methodist Church. Business opened daily with a prayer by delegate McMillan, not our Sheriff. The delegation consisted of, as I remember, W. Fisher, Esquimalt, Norris, Wallace, Barnard, Nelson, Armstrong, Holbrook, John Robson, the late Dr. Black, Dr. Strous, De Cosmos, Robt. Smith, and a colored gentleman named Gibbs, a Victoria merchant, a man of no ordinary ability as a politician of the then Victoria political college. He was indefatigable as a worker in getting up the convention and framing the terms of union to be submitted to the convention. In fact, he was, it might be said, the head and front of the whole affair.

Mr. Wallace was elected chairman, and business commenced. Several items of the terms of the union passed after some little discussion. Then came the construction by Canada of the transcontinental wagon road, so that in the event of the consummation of confederation, British Columbia and Canada would be more strongly united. Mr. Robert Smith moved an amendment to strike the wagon road out and insert in lieu thereof a railroad. After speaking over an hour pointing the benefits to be derived, and how important such a work would be to the Imperial government, in fact to the whole Empire, as a short cut to India over British soil. Out of the 34 delegates, he could not get one single man to support him. The idea was considered as wild, absurd, ridiculous. Chas. Fisher, Esquimalt, wanted to know how much the cost of a railroad would be between here and Canada. Mr. Smith told him about, $140,000,000. The House was dumbfounded, DeCosmos took cramps; Norris, hollooed "water;" Fisher left in disgust; Holbrook followed in his wake, taking their final leave of that conglommerated mass; that intelectual and political representation of the people of British Columbia in convention assembled.

The agitation cooled down and order somewhat restored. Mr. Norris, moved that the chair be empowered to appoint a board of doctors to examine Robert Smith and see that if he was not a fit subject for Stockton (for there is where we used to send all our lunatics before we discovered that New Westminster was the proper place for them).

Mr. Wallace, Chairman, ruled the motion out of order, the regular two days' notice not being on the paper.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE CONVENTION.

The preamble to the resolutions to be submitted to the convention recited the desirability for holding a convention of Her Majesty's loyal subjects and set forth the desirability of granting the people of the colony responsible government. The resolutions covering the ground of complaint, and urging a change in the form of government were very full and comprehensive, numbering no less then thirty-seven clauses or sections and twenty-sub-sections. The proceedings were of the most harmonious character. A full discussion on every paragraph took place, the greatest possible latitude being allowed each speaker.

The following committee was appointed to carry into effect the object of the convention: Hon. Amor De Cosmos, Messrs. McMillan, Wallace and Norris, Victoria; H. Havlock, Yale; John Robson, New Westminster; and Nelson of Burrard Inlet. The convention then adjourned sine die after proposing three cheers for the Queen and three rousing cheers and a "tiger" for the New Dominion.

Great praise at that time was accorded Mr. Wallace for his admirable tact and management while presiding over the deliberations of the gathering.

IN THE ASSEMBLY.

After the union of the two provinces in the Assembly at New Westminster, the question of union with Canada was brought up by Mr. DeCosmos. Much discussion took place on the subject. The Imperial government were communicated with by telegraph to ascertain if any provision had been made in the British North America Act for the admission of British Columbia, subsequently a resolution was carried in favor of union. The House then broke up, and at the next session in 1868, the governor, (Seymour) and all the official members of the Council, with many of the selected members, were against union, and that bitterly. The governor was interviewed, but in vain; he ridiculed the very idea of union. In order to test public opinion on the subject and put the issue fair and square before the colony. Mr. DeCosmos moved, seconded by Captain Stamp a resolution in the Assembly in favor of confederation. A heated discussion took place on the question. An amendment was moved by Auditor-General Kerr postponing the question and carried. For the motion of Mr. DeCosmos in favor of confederation there voted Messrs. Stamp, DeCosmos, Robson and Walkem. For the amendment and against confederation there were Messrs. Trutch, O'Reilly, Cox, Wood, Pemberton, Helmcken, Smith, Elwyn, Kerr, Ball, Walding and Cresse. Following this vote came the agitation for the Yale convention, at which gathering the fact was brought out that the mainland was a unit for confederation. The result of the convention was conveyed to the Canadian government, but as the Hudson Bay territory had not yet been ceeded to Canada it was deemed advisable to take no action on the matter by the Federal authorities.

THE PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

came on shortly after this, the mainland returned five Confederates and the Island four Anti-Confederates and Annexationists. In this city the contest lay between Messrs. DeCosmos and Powell, as Confederates, against Messrs. Helmcken and Drake, as Anti-Confederates. The contest was a very bitter one, the government bringing to vote a foreign element that swamped the vote of the British subjects. In the session of 1869 a resolution was carried by the government that "confederation would be undesirable, even if practicable." For that resolution there voted, Davie, Trutch, Helmcken, Drake, Sanders, O'Reilly, Holbrook, Wood, Ring, Ball and Pemberton. Against the resolution and in favor of confederation there voted: Messrs. Havelock, Humphreys, Carrall, Robson and Walkem. Although in a minority the Confederates stood their ground manfully. At last Gov. Musgrave was sent out with the avowed determination to compel the people to favor the scheme. Shortly after his arrival Dr. Helmcken changed his views, as did also Messrs. Drake and Ring. Another election took place when Mr. De Cosmos was elected on the confederation ticket. In the session of 1870 the preliminary terms, the basis of negotiations were passed by the council.

THE OTTAWA DELEGATION

composed of Messrs. Trutch, Helmcken and Carroll packed off with great haste to the capital with the view of arranging the terms upon which British Columbia would be admitted a member of the Canadian Federal family. These were satisfactorily arranged, and on the 1st of July, 1871, the banns of union were proclaimed between this province and the Dominion.

Those who fought the battles for confederation and union naturally were jubilant at the success of their efforts. Their opponents, many of whom were then, and still are, very hostile to Canada and everything Canadian. Happily, however, this feeling is rapidly disappearing. Now that the iron band binds Canada into one solid national phalanx, from ocean to ocean, it is to be hoped that a general feeling of national patriotism will take possession of every one in the province, and that each will feel that this his own country—

Fair Canada, our native land,
Our hopes are fixed on thee;
We're working out with heart and hand
The glorious destiny.

PARCELS POST.

The New System of Parcels Post Between Great Britain and Canada.

On the first instant the parcel post service between Canada and Great Britain came into operation. The regulations as received by Postmaster Wallace are as follows:

1. The parcel must not exceed three pounds. 2. The dimensions of the parcel must not exceed two feet in length and one in width and depth. 3. The parcel must not contain explosive, combustible nor dangerous articles, nor any articles of a perishable or fragile nature, nor liquids or matters likely to injure other mail matter. 4. The parcel must be securely and substantially packed and closed. 5. It must be plainly directed and such direction must include the name and full address of the person for whom the parcel is intended. 6. The sender must fill out a customs declaration for each parcel sent, giving an accurate statement of the contents and value of the parcel, and also the address and signature of the sender, which declaration will be securely affixed to the parcel. These blank forms of this declaration will be supplied by the postal authorities. 6. The postage shall be 45 cents per pound or fraction of a pound. 7. The postage to the various sections in the Dominion, which are designated as divisions A, B, C and D, is as follows: To division A, including Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec post offices named, the rate is 30 cents per lb.; section B, Ontario offices named, 35 cents; section C, Manitoba offices specified, 40 cents; and to section D, British Columbia offices—Nanaimo, New Westminster and Victoria—the rate is 45 cents.

The parcels will be sent weekly by the Allan mail steamers, special bags being made up at this post office for Liverpool every Thursday evening, closing at 9 o'clock. The rate per pound in Quebec and the Maritime provinces is 20 cents, Ontario 35 cents, Manitoba 40 cents, and British Columbia 45 cents. Thus far no package has been received at the Victoria post office. Parcels sent in this way have all the safety of registration. The introduction of this new system, which marks an era in the postal history of the Dominion is, in a great measure, due to the English postal authorities. The expenses in connection with the arrangement will be mutually borne by both governments. The general parcel post service in England was only established about three years ago, and since that date experience has shown that it is now indispensable.

ARRESTS IN KOOTENAY.

Three Indians were arrested a short time ago in Kootenay, at Wild Horse Creek, for stealing. They resisted the officers, but the newly appointed magistrate, Mr. Phillips, looked upon the resistance as a contempt of court and rushing in secured all the culprits. After being sentenced to several weeks imprisonment, one of the prisoners escaped from the goal, the shackels still on him.

—Mrs. H. J. Miller will re-open her classes in painting and drawing, July 17th, in room over Shears & Page's dry goods store, Government street.

NEWS BY CABLE.

HOME RULE.

Opinion of Matthew Arnold on the Situation—Salisbury and Gladstone.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Matthew Arnold, who is in America, publishes a letter in the London Times, in which he says: I suppose there is no country in the world where Gladstone's favor is stronger than in the United States. Yet even here, if you weigh, instead of count, opinions and balance those opposed to his Irish policy it will be found that the main motive Americans have for sympathy with Gladstone is a temptation to please the Irish. The weighty opinion is not that of a general opinion, who yield to this temptation, but that of men who resist and look upon these as a serious people, whose opinion is against Gladstone. Nevertheless Americans, one and all, sincerely believe that the Irish ought to have control of their own local affairs, and Salisbury must recognize this if he merely tries to keep order and let things drift. His will be a great opportunity if he produces a good scheme of local government. He will probably secure Gladstone's support for it.

SOCIALISTIC.

Important Discovery Made in Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Aug. 6.—The police last night raided a beer cellar, much frequented by Socialists, when a meeting was being held. The meeting was broken up and the cellar searched. The search revealed the fact that it was the rendezvous of Socialists of the most extreme class. Documents found showing the existence of a secret society, which had ramifications throughout Germany, Holland and England, and one whose official headquarters in Germany was here. Subscriptions lists, accounts and letters were found, which taken together offered a clue to a large proportion of membership organization. The discoveries made where such as to warrant the police in arresting eight of the Socialists found in the cellar when the officers made their descent.

SOCIAL SCANDALS.

A Clergyman Fined $5000—The Dilke Case Again.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Rev. Mr. Finlayson, Organizing Secretary of the Colonial Aid Continental Church Society of the established church was to-day condemned to pay $5000 damages to a merchant named Cookson, in a divorce suit brought by the latter against his wife, on the grounds of adultery with Finlayson. Cookson was given a decree in the divorce against his wife.

THE DILKE CASE.

The decree of divorce obtained nisi, by Donald Crawford on February 12th last, against his wife, because of her relations with Dilke was to-day declared absolute.

A GREAT RUSH.

Another Steamer to be Placed on the Puget Sound Route Temporarily.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The rush for tickets to Portland has been so great for the last three days that it is impossible to get into the steamship company's office on Montgomery street. The doors of the office were again blocked this morning with a dense mass of people, all struggling to get tickets. It may, perhaps, be found necessary for the company to put on an extra steamer in order to provide accomodation for all who wish to visit Portland, the Sound and British Columbia.

AFFAIRS IN BURMAH.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The state of affairs in Burmah has been ever since the British occupation, one of political disturbances and general confusion. In consequence of this the British government in India has decided to entrust the supreme command in Burmah to Major-General Sir Herbert McPherson, Commander-in-Chief in Madras, 5,000 troops be sent into the country so soon as the cold season commences, to scour and drive out and subdue the insurgents. One thousand additional police will be sent to India to maintain order.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

BELFAST, Aug. 7.—At the riot which took place this morning between the Orangemen employed in the Queen's Island ship yard, and the Catholic navvies, employed by the harbor commissioners, the fighting was very severe for a time and resembled in character that which occurred between the same elements of the 4th of June, when the Orangemen, greatly outnumbering the navvies, overpowered and beat them and drove them into the water, where one was drowned. A number of men on both sides were so badly injured in to-day's fighting that they had to be removed to the hospital.

$60,000 TO PARNELL.

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—Dr. O'Reilly this morning cabled to the treasurer of the Irish parliamentary funds, $60,000, to sustain the Parnellites. The following dispatch was sent: Parnell, House of Commons, London. Have this day transmitted to trustees $60,000. League in America relaxes no effort; knows no dismay. O'Reilly, Treasurer.

MR. BLAKE CRITICISED BY PETER MITCHELL.

As many of THE TIMES readers are aware, the Hon. PETER MITCHELL who was Canada's first Minister of Marine and Fisheries under Confederation—and possibly the most efficient administrator of that department the country has had—for some years back has pursued a somewhat peculiar course in Canadian politics. He claims to be an independent leader—a leader of himself only, however, for so far he is without any followers. A couple of years since he secured a controlling interest in the Montreal Herald. During the recent session of Parliament when some question affecting the Canadian Pacific Railway was up for discussion Mr. BLAKE, as usual, and as was his undoubted right, criticised the measure as well as the undertaking somewhat severely. For doing so, Mr. MITCHELL through the Herald warmly assailed Mr. BLAKE, much to the annoyance of the latter. Mr. MITCHELL, it appears, promised a reperusal of the article and if he thought it too strong, under the circumstance he would modify his strictures on Mr. BLAKE. A few days since an open letter on the subject appeared in the Herald occupying a full page from Mr. MITCHELL to MR. BLAKE. Not only does Mr. MITCHELL adhere to his former ground, but he closes his letter by "rubing it in" after the following fashion:

Before concluding, my dear Mr. Blake, permit me to say that, making every allowance for your great intellectual abilities and your political sagacity, and the experience which, combined with them, should ensure a reasonable amount of foresight of humble events, there remains the fact that your prophecies have turned out failures and the sinister predictions of yourself and your friends have not been realized. Was it you or was it some one else who talked of British Columbia's "sea of mountains" as offering an impassable barrier to railway construction. The mountains now look down upon the Canadian Pacific accomplished. Was it you or some one else who predicted that the rail north of Lake Superior would never be built. Railway trains ran on this portion of the road all last winter with as much regularity as in any other part of the North American continent. Was it you or some one else who spoke of the worthless character of the prairie lands for hundreds of miles along the Canadian Pacific—land which have since yielded the most bountiful crops? Was it you or only your lieutenants or your press that predicted that the company might build the prairie sections and throw up the Lake Superior and Rocky Mountain contracts. Even last fall, five years before the original contract called for the completion of the road, trains ran from the Atlantic to the Pacific, every mile of the 3,100 through Canadian territory; and in a few days the time table of the great Canadian transcontinental route will be issued to the public and the road will be formally opened for perpetual traffic! My dear sir, since all hostile predictions have failed, all attacks proved powerless, to thwart the completion of the work, all financial and stock jobbing assaults neutralized, since the great enterprise has marched steadily and successfully on over the intrigues and the slanders, the traps and devices of its enemies; since the great fact of rapid and perfect construction must be acknowledged and cannot be denied, why not openly concede what cannot be refuted, and join with those who rejoice over the completion of a national work whose overshadowing importance and difficulties of construction place it among the greatest physical achievements of the age?

Unquestionably Mr. MITCHELL has the advantage of the position in the controversy. Not only have the company completed the work much within the time specified, but the traffic has already developed to an extraordinary extent. A contemporary truly observes that the success of the company means success for the country. The interests of the two are intimately associated, and while the company, like any other monopoly, stands in need of scrutiny and criticism with regard to its administrative acts, the road should be regarded and supported by all Canadians as a national enterprise. It is useless to observe what might have been. What is must now be looked to, and the Dominion opposition should now be willing to make the best of the situation. It certainly is folly to pursue a different policy.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA.

The adherents of the expelled French dynasties accuse General BOULANGER of aiming at a dictatorship, with possibly an ulterior intention at some future period to assail Germany. In this class, however, are to be found those who console themselves with the belief that the three great military and reactionary powers of central and eastern Europe would combine to smother France. That is the sort of patriots they are. Like the emigres in 1814, they would gloat over the agonies of their devastated country, if only some pretender might sneak back at the heels of invading armies. But are they not a little hasty in their complacent readings of the future? Are they quite certain that history would so obligingly repeat itself?

It is assumed that Russia would join hands with Germany and Austria the moment the French republic sought to regain its own and rear its head aloft among the nations. An autocratic government must always, we are told, be prompted by the instinct of self-preservation to look askance upon the progress and prestige of free institutions. But has Russia nothing else to think about but the claims of distant nations to the west bank of the Rhine, and the veerings of political opinion at the further end of Europe? Has she no interests much nearer home and closer to her heart? Can her cherished dreams and reasonable strivings expect sympathy and furtherance from any country except France? Is it Germany, or Austria, or England that can by any sacrifice be won to help her in her age-long struggle for emergence from the frozen north, and for access to those southern waters which are the highways of the world?

It is true enough that whereas Russia, during GORTCHAKOFF's tenure of her Foreign office, had a clearly defined policy, she now has nothing but the whims of a Czar. Yet even impulse and caprice may serve a nation well enough when, as in the case of ALEXANDER III., they take the form of rooted antipathy to those central powers of which Russia has been the cat's-paw for three-quarters of a century. His notorious aversion to Austria and Prussia would be shared by NESSELRODE and GORTCHAKOFF, were those statesmen alive to-day to strike a balance sheet between the northern empire and its neighbors, and compute the beggarly return for its repeated benefactions to the HOHENZOLLERNS and the HAPSBURGS. How many rude and galling lessons will Muscovite diplomacy require before it learns that every time it plays the game of a METTERNICH or BISMARCK it will be doomed to play the fool?

Had Russia from the outset of this century kept a single eye to her own interests and recognized that France, no matter what might be the domestic institutions of that country, was her only possible and useful coadjutor in Europe, she would long ago have planted the cross of St. Sophia and secured the longed for outlets of the Persian Gulf and China Sea. ALEXANDER I. refused the overtures of the first NAPOLEON, and bore the brunt of the great efforts which ended in the latter's overthrow. The debt was paid in 1829, when the powers he had befriended interposed to snatch Constantinople from DIEBITSCH, who held it in his grasp. Again, in 1849, Czar NICHOLAS saved the HAPSBURGH empire from disruption at the hands of the Magyars. He lived to see the power he had delivered the bitter enemy of Russia throughout the Crimean war and in the Congress of Paris. In 1866 and 1870 Prince GORTCHAKOFF filled the role of second in a duel, and forced the rest of Europe to stand off, while his friend BISMARCK drove the HAPSBURGS out of Germany and ruined the French Second Empire. He, too, had his reward, when at the Congress of Berlin, which robbed his country of the dear-bought gains wrung from the Turk at St. Stefano, he perceived that while the voice was BEACONSFIELD's, the hand was BISMARK's. With a past so fraught with disillusion, it seems incredible that Russia should connive at such a further spoliation and dismemberment of France as would erase that country from the list of ponderable factors in European calculations. BISMARCK might engage to give the Czar Constantinople in return for her cooperation, but his gratitude would prove about as long lived as the HAPSBURGS', and he would no more scruple to violate his promise than he did to break the pledge he gave to GORTCHAKOFF. France alone, by her army and her navy, might give to Russia a fair chance of beating the central powers on land and Great Britain on the ocean; while, France once extinguished, BISMARCK would forthwith execute his plan of transferring the seat of HAPSBURG authority from Vienna to the Bosporus.

GOLDWIN SMITH expresses the opinion that since the time of Demosthenes there have not been a dozen orators in all the world superior or even equal to the Quaker statesman, John Bright.

IT is understood that a party of American capitalists are inspecting the Haycock iron mine in Ottawa County with a view of purchasing it. They have also a new and improved diamond drill, with which they intend to prospect for phosphates in the same district.

RUSSIA is excited and uneasy at rumours of the contemplated occupation by England of Badakshan, a district north east of Afghanistan. The well-known Asiatic explorer, Colonel Prjevalsky, has been summoned to St. Petersburg to give his advice on the matter. Recently the Kaukas, which is the official organ of the Russian Government in the Caucasus, published an article which dilated upon the injury that would be done to Russian trade by a British occupation of Badakshan.

MY LADY'S MONEY.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

An Episode in the Life of a Young Girl.

CHAPTER XX.

The day of the garden party arrived. There was no rain, but the air was heavy, and the sky was overcast by lowering clouds.

Some hours before the guests were expected Isabel arrived alone at the farm, bearing the apologies of unfortunate Miss Pink, still kept a prisoner in her bedchamber by the asthma. In the confusion produced at the cottage by the preparations for entertaining the company, the one room in which Hardyman could receive Isabel, with the certainty of not being interrupted, was the smoking room. To this haven of refuge he led her—still reserved and silent, still not restored to her customary spirits. "If any visitors come before the time," Hardyman said to his servant, "tell them I am engaged at the stables—I must have an hour's quiet talk with you," he continued, turning to Isabel, "or I shall be in too bad a temper to receive my guests with common politeness. The worry of giving this party is not to be told in words. I almost wish I had been content with presenting you to my mother, and had let the rest of my acquaintance go to the devil."

A quiet half hour passed, and the first visitor, a stranger to the servants, appeared at the cottage gate. He was a middle-aged man, and he had no wish to disturb Mr. Hardyman. "I will wait in the grounds," he said, "and trouble nobody." The middle-aged man who expressed himself in these modest terms was Robert Moody.

Five minutes later a carriage drove up to the gate. An elderly lady got out of it, followed by a fat white Scotch terrier that growled at every stranger within his reach. It is needless to introduce Lady Lydiard and Tommie.

Informed that Mr. Hardyman was at the stables, Lady Lydiard gave the servant her card. "Take that to your master, and say I won't detain him five minutes." With these words her ladyship sauntered into the grounds. She looked about her with observant eyes, not only noticing the tent which had been set up on the grass to accommodate the expected guests, but entering it and looking at the waiters who were engaged in placing the luncheon on the table. Returning to the outer world she next remarked that Mr. Hardyman's lawn was in very bad order. Barren, sun-dried patches, and little holes and crevices opened here and there by the action of the summer heat, announced that the lawn, like everything else at the farm, had been neglected in the exclusive attention paid to the claims of the horses. Reaching a shrubbery which bounded one side of the grounds next, her ladyship became aware of a man slowly approaching her, to all appearance absorbed in thought. The man drew a little nearer. She lifted her glasses to her eyes and recognized—Moody.

No embarrassment was produced on either side by this unexpected meeting. Lady Lydiard had, not long since, sent to ask her former steward to visit her, regretting in her warm hearted way the terms on which they had separated, and wishing to atone for the harsh language that had escaped her at their parting interview. In the friendly talk which followed the reconciliation Lady Lydiard not only heard the news of Moody's pecuniary inheritance, but, noticing the change to his disadvantage for the worse, contrived to extract from him the confession of his ill-starred passion for Isabel. To discover him now, after all that he had acknowledged, walking about the grounds at Hardyman's farm, took her ladyship completely by surprise. "Good heavens!" she exclaimed, in her loudest tones, "what are you doing here?"

"You mentioned Mr. Hardyman's garden party, my lady, when I had the honor of waiting on you," Moody answered. "Thinking over it afterwards, it seemed the fittest occasion I could find for making a little wedding present to Miss Isabel. Is there any harm in my asking Mr. Hardyman to let me put the present on her plate, so that she may see it when she sits down to luncheon? If your ladyship thinks so I will go away directly, and send the gift by post."

Lady Lydiard looked at him attentively. "You don't despise the girl," she asked, "for selling herself for rank and money? I do, I can tell you."

Moody's worn white face flushed a little. "No, my lady," he answered, "I can't hear you say that. Isabel would not have engaged herself to Mr. Hardyman unless she had been fond of him—as fond, I dare say, as I once hoped she might be of me. It's a hard thing to confess that; but I do confess it, in justice to her—God bless her!"

The generosity that spoke in those simple words touched the finest sympathies in Lady Lydiard's nature. "Give me your hand," she said, with her own generous spirit kindling in her eyes. "You have a great heart, Moody. Isabel Miller is a fool for not marrying you—and one day she will know it."

Before a word more could pass between them, Hardyman's voice was audible on the other side of the shrubbery, calling irritably to his servant to find Lady Lydiard.

Moody retired to the farther end of the walk, while Lady Lydiard advanced in the opposite direction, so as to meet Hardyman at the entrance to the shrubbery. He bowed stiffly, and begged to know why her ladyship had honored him with a visit.

Lady Lydiard replied, without noticing the coldness of her reception:

"I have not been very well, Mr. Hardyman, or you would have seen me before this. My only object in presenting myself here is to make my excuses personally for having written of you in terms which expressed a doubt of your honor. I have done you an injustice, and I beg you to forgive me."

Hardyman acknowledged this frank apology as unreservedly as it had been offered to him. "Say no more, Lady Lydiard. And let me hope, now you are here, that you will honor my little party with your presence."

Lady Lydiard gravely stated her reasons for not accepting the invitation.

"I disapprove so strongly of unequal marriages," she said, walking on slowly towards the cottage, "that I cannot, in common consistency, become one of your guests. I shall always feel interested in Isabel Miller's welfare; and I can honestly say I shall be glad if your married life proves that my old-fashioned prejudice are without justification in your case. Accept my thanks for your invitation, and let me hope that my plain speaking has not offended you."

She bowed and looked about her for Tommie before she advanced to the carriage waiting for her at the gate. In the surprise of seeing Moody she had forgotten to look back for the dog. There she expected, then shrubbery. She now called to him, and blew the whistle at her watch chain. Not a sign of Tommie was to be seen. Hardyman instantly directed the servants to search in the cottage and out of the cottage for the dog. The order was obeyed with all needful activity and intelligence, and entirely without success. For the time being, at any rate, Tommie was lost.

Hardyman promised to have the dog looked for in every part of the farm, and to send him back in the care of one of his own men. With these polite assurances Lady Lydiard was obliged to be satisfied. She drove away in a very despondent frame of mind. "First Isabel and now Tommie," thought her ladyship. "I am losing the only companions who made life tolerable to me."

Returning from the garden gate, after taking leave of his visitor, Hardyman received from his servant a handful of letters which had just arrived for him. Walking slowly over the lawn as he opened them, he found nothing but excuses for the absence of guests who had already accepted his invitations. He had just thrust the letters into his pocket when he heard footsteps behind him, and, looking round, found himself confronted by Moody.

"Haven't you come here to lunch?" Hardyman asked, roughly.

"I have come here, sir, with a little gift for Miss Isabel, in honor of her marriage," Moody answered, quietly. "And I ask your permission to put it on the table, so that she may see it when your guests sit down to luncheon."

He opened a jeweler's case as he spoke, containing a plain gold bracelet with an inscription engraved on the inner side: "To Miss Isabel Miller, with the sincere good wishes of Robert Moody."

Plain as it was, the design of the bracelet was unusually beautiful. Hardyman had noticed Moody's agitation on the day when he had met Isabel near her aunt's house, and had drawn his own conclusions from it. His face darkened with a momentary jealousy as he looked at the bracelet. "All right, old fellow!" he said, with contemptuous familiarity. "Don't be modest. Wait and give it to her with your own hand."

"No, sir," said Moody. "I would rather leave it, if you please, to speak for itself."

Hardyman understood the delicacy of feeling which dictated those words, and without well knowing why, resented it. He was on the point of speaking under the influence of this unworthy feeling, when Isabel's voice reached his ears, calling to him from the cottage.

Moody's face contracted with a sudden expression of pain as he, too, recognized the voice. "Don't let me detain you, sir," he said, sadly. "Good morning!"

Hardyman left him without ceremony. Moody, slowly following, entered the tent. All the preparations for the luncheon had been completed; nobody was there. The places to be occupied by the guests were indicated by cards bearing their names. Moody found Isabel's card, and put his bracelet inside the folded napkin on her plate. For awhile he stood with his hand on the table, thinking. The temptation to communicate once more with Isabel before he lost her forever was fast getting the better of his powers of resistance. "If I could persuade her to write a word to say she liked her bracelet," he thought, "it would be a comfort when I go back to my solitary life." He tore a leaf out of his pocketbook and wrote on it: "One line to say you accept my gift and my good wishes. Put it under the cushion of your chair and I shall find it when the company have left the tent." He slipped the paper into the case which held the bracelet, and instead of leaving the farm as he had intended, turned back to the shelter of the shrubbery.

WHAT ONE SMALL HEAD KNOWS.

The Weight of Dead Facts Stored in the Pigeon-Holes of Memory.

Take the animal world, for example—the creatures themselves, and not their names—and look at the diversity of cats and dogs, goats and sheep, beetles and butterflies, soles and shrimps, that even the ordinary unlearned man knows and recognizes, and mostly remembers.

Narrow the question down to dogs alone, and still you get the same result. Consider the St. Bernards and mastiffs, the pugs and bulldogs, the black and tans and King Charlies, the sheep dogs and the deer hounds, the shivering little Italian greyhounds and the long dachshunds that you buy by the yard. Every one of these, and countless others, has got to have its cell all to itself in the classificatory department of the human brain, and I suppose another cell for its name in the portion specially devoted to language also. Add to these the plants, flowers, fruits, roots, and other well-known vegetable products whose names are familiar to almost everybody and what a total you have got at once! A good botanist, to take a more specific case, knows (in addition to a stock of general knowledge about equivalent on the average to anybody else's) the names and natures of hundreds and thousands of distinct plants, to say nothing about innumerable small peculiarities of stem, and leaf, and flower, and seed in every species and variety among them all.

No, the mere bare weight of dead fact with which everybody's memory is stored and laden defies the possibility of reckoning and pigeon-holing. Make your separate dockets ever so tiny, reduce them all to their smallest dimensions, and yet their will not be room for all of them in the human brain. The more we think on it the more will the wonder grow that one small head can carry all that the merest infant knows.—Grant Allen in the Gentleman's Magazine.

Curious Psychical Phenomenology.

During a certain period of my life I suffered from frequent syncope, and I had the opportunity of observing on myself the psychical phenomenology of the return to consciousness. During syncope there is absolute psychical non-existence, total absence of all consciousness; then one begins to have a vague, unlimited, infinite feeling, a feeling of existence in general without any delineation of one's own individuality without the least trace of any distinction between the ego and the non-ego; one is then "an organic part of nature," having the consciousness of the fact of one's existence, but having none of the fact of his organic unity; one has, in a word, an impersonal consciousness. This feeling may be agreeable if the syncope is not due to violent pain, and very disagreeable if it is; this is the only possible distinction, one feels that he is living and enjoying, or living and suffering without knowing why he enjoys or suffers; and without knowing the the seat of this sentiment.—Professor A. Herzen in Journal of Medical Science.

A Little Girl Uncovers a Skeleton.

Three families of social, commercial and religious distinction live in the same block at one of the north side avenues. People who live across the street have long suspected that there was a chord out of tune in the distinctive set. A little girl let the secret out. There was a collision in the street. The carriage of one of the families first mentioned suffered severely and the occupants were thrown out. One was the lady of the brown-stone front. She received a slight injury and was assisted to one of the little grass plots that fringed the sidewalk, where she swooned from excitement, but quickly recovered. Let her family name be Smith. The people across the street noticed that none of the set in the block came out to give relief or assistance. When it became apparent that there was no occasion for any alarm this little girl, who is responsible for the story, came out of her house, and approaching the lady who had met with the accident, said, in her truthful, child way: "Why, Mrs. Smith—is it you? We thought it was the Joneses!"—Chicago Herald.

When a Pugilist Has Had Enough.

"Is there any way of forcing men to fight after they have had enough and want to quit?"

"None but talking to them," replied the old sport. "You may nerve a man up by encouraging him, or you may shame him into going ahead rather than be thought a coward, or you may make him desperate by telling him how everybody will go back on him if he does not show game, but if all these fails there is nothing more to be done. If the cur is in him he will not fight, and you can not force him to. You might bite chunks out of him, and the cur would endure all rather than fight if he once gets a terror on him of the man that is pitted against him and feels that he has got enough. You may even shove him out into the ring, and he will stand up to be knocked down, without putting up his hands to defend himself, if he has cur blood in him and it has been waked up.—New York Sun.

THE WELL-KNOWN
SPECIALIST,
Proprietor & Consulting Physician of the Only Private Dispensary on the Pacific Coast, now permanently located at 132, 134, Third Street, Portland, Or.

DR. VANMONCISCAR has made the treatment of Private Diseases of Men a special study and practice for many years. Over 4000 cases treated yearly. Recent cases of private diseases cured in a short time. Ulcers, Humors and Blotches on Face or Body, cured without giving Mercury for other Poisons. Mercury is the curse of the human race. Your children will suffer from its effects. Avoid it as you would any deadly Drug, and use no more. These diseases are being cured at this Dispensary without Mercury.

is a graduate of a regular Medical College, is well known over the United States and Canada by Thousands of Old and Young Men he has Cured.
and it is a well known fact that for years he has confined himself to the study and treatment of Sexual and Chronic Diseases, thus giving him advantages few possess. Dr. Vanmonciscar addresses himself particularly to those who have already tried various physicians and remedies from whom they have received no benefit, and who, in fact, have done them more harm than good. Medicine, like all other sciences, is progressive, and every year shows proof of its advance. By a combination of remedies of great curative power, Dr. Vanmonciscar has so arranged his treatment that it will afford not only immediate relief, but permanent cure.

YOUNG MEN
who are suffering from the effects of youthful indiscretions showing some of the following symptoms—Nervous and Physical Debility, Impotency, Unnatural Lost Manhood, Abuses of the system, Enlarged Vitality, Confusion of Ideas, Dizziness and Loss of Brilliancy in the Eye, Aversion to society, Despondency, Pimples on the Face, Loss of Energy, and Frequency of Urinating. You may be in the first stage, but remember you are fast approaching the last. Do not let false pride and sham modesty deter you from attending to your ailments. Many a bright and naturally gifted young man, endowed with genius, has permitted his case to run on and on, until remorse racked his intellect, and gloomy despair settled in his brain. Remember that "Procrastination is the thief of time." So lay aside your pride, and consult one who thoroughly understands your ailment, and who will know your case, and find permanent relief for an ailment that has made day a drudgery and night hideous. Thousands upon thousands of men in good standing in the social world, of prominence in the world are today suffering from the fruits of their doings, the seeds of which were sown during moments in thoughtlessness. Young man turn and pause upon thy companion, or seek the enjoyer for proof to substantiate what I say. Oh! could he confess the sin of late, or had he his life to live again, then I could not appeal to you more sincerely. Let your mind wander back to the sparkling innocent companion of a boy long father, and remember what you are to-day. Though you may for the present ridicule this society, the time is not inevitable as fate when your tortured will, like a fresh impart, leaving you a stunted wreck—desolate, forgotten and lost; so embrace the opportunity and enjoy life and happiness longer. If you claim to be a man, ask your part family. Do not console yourself with the thought that Nature will help itself, for in doing so you not only fan the flame, but wreck Nature and yourself. Remember, "Large oaks from little acorns grow." "Little the germinate fatal diseases."

Middle-aged Men
married or single, who are, prematurely old as a result of excesses or youthful follies, and who are troubled by too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and finding a deposit of ropy mucus or a brick dust sediment. Urine small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will first be of a thin or milkish hue, and again changing to a dark or turbid appearance, combined with some debility and loss of Vitality. Remember, this is the second stage of Seminal Weakness. In all cases a perfect cure is guaranteed, and a radical restoration of the Genito-Urinary Organs. All interviews and letters are sacredly confidential. Letters should be sent to us in plain envelopes, and sent by express, if you desire, C.O.D. (if one is given) but one personal interview is all we ask preferred. Patients treated at a distance by letter and express. Office hours: 9 A. M. to 8 P. M. Sundays, 10 A. M. to 4 P. M.

GRAND BALL.

Given by Citizens last Night in Honor of Sir John and Lady Macdonald.

Assembly Hall, Fort street, was formally opened last night under favorable auspices by a grand citizens' ball in honor of our distinguished visitors, Sir John and Lady Macdonald. The ball-room was fairly well decorated and presented a brilliant spectacle with beautiful women in handsome costumes, a sprinkling of the Military and Navy and the orthodox evening dress of private gentlemen. About 150 couples were present. In the opening dance, the Lancers, Lady Macdonald danced most gracefully with Lieut.-Governor Cornwall, Senator Macdonald with Mrs. Cornwall, Senator Nelson with Mrs. Gray, and Mr. Justice Walkem with Mrs. Nelson. Amongst the many guests were Sir John and Lady Macdonald, Lieut.-Governor Cornwall and Mrs. Cornwall, Admiral Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, Lord Durham, Sir Richard Musgrave, Hon W Smithe, Senator Macdonald, Mrs and the Misses Macdonalds, Senator and Mrs Nelson, Mayor Fell, Capt and Mrs Prior, Mr and Mrs Pooley, M W T Drake, Miss Drake, H Helmcken, Mr. and Mrs Tye, Miss Galley, Mr and Mrs C E Perry, Miss Wright, R Dunsmuir and Miss Dunsmuir, Mr and Mrs H Croft, Mrs Col Houghton, Miss Lizzie Sehl and Miss Rica Zelner, Mr and Mrs Cludley, Mr and Mrs A J Smith, Capt and Mrs Troup, Mr and Mrs I Oppenheimer and Miss Oppenheimer, Mr and Mrs Prevost, Mr and Mrs Higgins, Mr and Mrs J A Raymur, Miss Lawson, Mr and Mrs Wilson, Rod'k Finlayson and the Miss Finlaysons, Mrs Woods, Mrs Blaklock, Mr and Mrs Keefer, Miss Bresly, Mr Edgar Marvin, jr., Mr W Lange, Mrs and Miss Lange, Mr and Mrs T B Hall, Professor Sorge, the Misses Hartnagel, Mr Charles, Miss Charles, Mr. D. Vernon and many others. The Triumph's band, under the leadership of Signor A. Agius, furnished excellent music. At midnight a sumptuous supper was spread in the large dining hall; refreshments were served ad lib all the evening in the main hall. The affair was undoubtedly one of the pleasantest ever given here, and apparently enjoyed by all.

PREMIER NORQUAY.

Manitoba's Premier Visits British Columbia and is Now in Victoria.

Amongst the arrivals from the east on Thursday evening were the Hon. John Norquay, Premier of Manitoba, accompanied by his wife and Miss Norquay. M. Norquay is a fair specimen of a genuine Nor'-Wester. He is a native of the Red River country, having been born there in 1841. He was educated at St. John's Academy under the late Bishop Anderson. Mr. Norquay is a talented gentleman, an eloquent speaker and an excellent parliamentary debater. Has been premier of Manitoba since October, 1878. Is a Conservative in politics. In 1870 he took an active part in suppressing the Red River rebellion. In 1871 he was appointed Minister of Public Works, which office he held until July 8, 1874, when he resigned. In March, 1875, he was sworn in as Provincial Secretary, and in May, 1876, was again selected as Minister of Public Works. Mr. Norquay is a warm personal friend of Sir John's, of whom he is a great admirer. Yesterday the party drove around the city and its environs, and were greatly pleased with our splendid roads and drives, which is entirely different to Northwest hard clay roads. The grand mountain scenery greatly delighted the Premier of the prairie province and his party. With our climate they are charmed.

THE NEW TELEGRAPH LINE.

James Atcheson, of New York, was at Ottawa on the 2nd en route to British Columbia. He will superintend the construction of a cable and land telegraph line from Port Moody to San Francisco. Three hundred men will be employed, and work will be completed in the fall. (?) The line, which will be eleven hundred miles long, will be connected with the Canadian Pacific railway commercial system. The promoters are John W. McKay and James Gordon Bennett. By an arrangement with the C. P. R. they will compete for California and Pacific coast business, which has hitherto been controlled by the Western Union.

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.

The steamer Mexico, which sailed at noon to-day, carried the following passengers for San Francisco: Lord Durham, Mr. Lambton, T Ownes, R W Enos, C B Portman, Thos Ellis and wife, Wee Sing Kee, wife and daughter, Mrs Lee Chan, Frank Milton, J N Stewart and wife, A Ramsay, J C Holden, H De la Montaly, Miss F Campbell, Miss Lilly Campbell, J D Ronald, and wife, Mrs J W Barnum, W M Keefer, John Robertson, and 25 in the steerage.

THE END OF THE ROPE.

George LaBocque, well known to the sporting fraternity of this city and who figured in our courts last year, has been arrested at Portland, whither he has been living since leaving this city, on the charge of vagrancy. He was at one time worth $50,000, his share of his father's estate, but the three modern Graces, wine, woman and gambling, have brought him to the end of the rope.

TRAFFIC BOOMING.

A Montreal dispatch says: So great is the traffic on the Canadian Pacific railway that orders have been given for the construction of three hundred new box cars. The gross earnings for June were $895,923; working expenses, $590,473; net profits, $376,449, an increase compared with June of last year of $92,958. There has been an increase in net profits for the six months ending June of $179,207.

THE QUICKEST YET.

Captain Jones, a British ship master, arrived in the city on Wednesday in six days and seven hours from New York. He left the modern Gotham on Thursday the 29th, coming by way of Ogdensburg and Brockville, where the train was taken for Carleton Place; thence the C. P. R. to Port Moody; reaching Victoria shortly after 9 o'clock on Wednesday evening. This indeed is fast travelling.

HONEST DESERTERS.

Two sailors deserted from H. M. S. Triumph a few days ago, and stole a boat from Mr. Howard, of Esquimalt, in which they crossed over to Port Townsend. On Thursday, the boat, with sail and oars, was returned by the North Pacific, freight prepaid.

THE CLARENCE.

The new hotel, situated on the corner of Douglas and Yates street, will be in running order in about three weeks. It will be called "The Clarence." The furniture for the hotel was imported from London Ont., and is here ready for unpacking, having arrived a few days ago via the C. P. R.

WOULD MAKE A HORSE LAUGH.

Simon Goulette, a Montreal Liberal, while laughing heartily over the triumph in Chambly, dislocated his jaw and had to be removed to the hospital.

—Fidelity Hams and Bacon are the best in the market, at NEUFELDER & ROSS.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Messrs. A. Ramsay and J. C. Holden, of Montreal, left for home to-day going via San Francisco.

Mr. J. D. Ronald, manufacturer of steam fire engines, Brussels, Ont., accompanied by Mrs. Ronald, left for San Francisco to-day.

Mr. W. T. Cox, of the post office service, is at the Driard.

At the Driard: R Y Ellis, Toronto; and Leigh Hunt, Iowa.

Mrs. Baldwin, of Vancouver, returned from Olympia, where she has been visiting a brother for several weeks, this afternoon.

Mr. Gideon Robertson, of Vancouver, is in the city.

GOT SIX MONTHS.

Ah Woy, a Chinese cook in the employ of Mr. Gannaway, has been systematically purloining his master's property since the first of the month and spending the amount realized from putting them in soak by gambling. Last night he tried to pawn some articles of jewelry at Aaronson's, but that gentleman suspected they had been stolen and at once communicated with the police. Ah Woy was taken in charge and a valuable cameo brooch, bracelets and a necklace were found on his person. Seven or eight pawn tickets—calling for two revolvers, a gold finger ring, two vests, telescope, one coat and a pair of blankets—were also found in his pocket, and all the articles were procured from the pawn shop and produced in court, where they were identified by Mr. Gannaway as his property and restored to him. Ah Woy pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six months at hard labor. He explained that he had stolen the articles to provide him with funds for gambling, intending to return them when tan-tan smiled upon him. To Mr. Aaronson is due the credit of discovering and convicting the thief, as Mr. Gannaway stated in court that the first knowledge he had of the circumstance was when the officer made his appearance and took Ah Woy in charge.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Mr. John told the electors at the Cedar hill meeting that he would pursue the charge of bribery and corruption alleged against him by Mr. Humphreys to the bitter end. "Why don't he do it?" Mr. Humphreys assured me that he can prove more than he charged Mr. John with, and that he challenges him to bring the case into court. Come, Mr. John, keep the promise you made to the electors, or swallow the pill.

SAANICH VOTER.

GOING TO NANAIMO.

Sir John A. Macdonald and party will go to Nanaimo, on Wednesday probably, over the E. & N. R., as the guest of Mr. Dunsmuir, President of the road. Mr. Dunsmuir purchased Onderdonk's private car "Eva," which has been brought down to Esquimalt, and will be used on the first trip.

ADVANTAGES OF ADVERTISING.

Messrs. Boucherat & Co., who advertise their Fredericksburgh and Milwaukee beers in this paper, sold about seventy-five barrels of it last week. So much for THE TIMES as an advertising medium.

The New York Sun makes the point that while slavery flourished at the South free trade politics flourished there also, but since the abolition of slavery the Southern States have become mainly protectionist. This is a neat little nut for free trade philosophers to test their molars on.

THE recent storm in the Red River valley, Minnesota and Dakota, destroyed 1,500,000 bushels of wheat. The yield of the valley this year will not exceed 10,000,000 bushels, against a total of 18,000,000 in former years.

THE cold-blooded London Free Press a journal of strong conservative proclivities, intimates that there is "no hope" of Mr. Mowat's death! Now, if some Liberal journal had hinted that Sir John Macdonald is not immortal, how indignant all the ministerial papers would be.

IT is gratifying to note that the export of live stock from Canada continues to increase. The shipment of horses increased from 5,362 in 1875 to 12,310 in 1885; of cattle from 38,965 in 1875 to 144,441 in 1885; and of sheep from 242,438 in 1875 to 835,275 in 1885. The export of cattle in the last named year exceeds that of 1884 by 7,473.

A LIST of matriculants at Toronto university has been published. About 170 have matriculated in arts and eight in medicine. The ladies are well represented, J. Colling, St. Catharines Collegiate institute, won the Mary Mulock scholarship; F. L. Sawyer, Mitchell High school, the scholarship in mathematics; A. A. Macdonald Upper Canada college, the scholarship in modern languages and the Prince of Wales scholarship.

THE Chicago News complains that the motto of Congress is "millions for trout steams but nothing for the national defence." This is said because about $15,000,000 have been appropriated for river and harbor improvements and a little over $600,000 for coast defences. But so long as our first cousins on the mother's side stick to their own trout streams and do not fish in our waters, they will need no coast defences. Better are a clear conscience and a thin pair of breeches than robes of fur and a heart bowed down with weight of guilt.

THE despatches from England have it that Sir Charles Tupper will soon leave England for Canada. What his errand is this time it is hard to say. One report is that Sir John Macdonald is to resign the leadership of the Tory party in his favor. It is also stated that Sir Charles has been sent for to arrange some difficulties which have arisen in the Nova Scotia section of the Conservative party. There are several applicants for the late Judge Rigby's place on the Supreme Court bench. Mr. Townsend, Mr. Daly, and Mr. Wallace are said to be pressing their claims, and Sir Charles expects to arrange matters so that his son's partner will get the appointment.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Mr. E. Johnson, S. M.)

James Glassie, drunk; fined $5 or one week.

Ah Wan pleaded guilty to supplying an Indian with an intoxicant, and was fined $50 and $1 costs, or four months.

George Griffin, a Sooghis, in unlawful possession of a bottle of gin, was discharged, the Superintendent of Police consenting not to prosecute because of assistance given in finding the Chinaman who supplied the intoxicant.

Thos. Stark, a vagrant, was further remanded until Monday at the request of his counsel.

Francisca Pateria, on remand, charged with refusing to obey orders. Mr. Taylor appeared for the prosecution; Mr. T. Fell for the defendant. Sentenced to two days' imprisonment.

Neil McKinnon, charged with vagrancy, was given one more chance and was discharged.

Ah Woy, in unlawful possession of property—locket and bracelets—pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to six months' at hard labor.

Christopher Webb, on remand, charged with shooting at Benjamin Turner with intent to murder, was remanded until Monday.

MARINE.

The British bark Carrier Dove arrived at Astoria Tuesday last from Yokohama which port she left on June 17. The Carrier Dove has 23,000 packages of tea on board which are consigned to the O. R. & N. Co. She was reported as sailing up the Straits last Tuesday bound for Port Moody, which was an error.

The U. S. lighthouse steamer Manzanita, which lay at anchor for a short time in our harbor the early part of the week, has sailed for Alaskan waters with lights, buoys, etc.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION.

Next Saturday evening, at 7:30, the steamer Amelia will leave for an excursion to Esquimalt and down the straits. The Queen City band will be in attendance and dancing indulged in. The fare is within reach of all—50 cents, and those who desire a trip on the water can do so at a small cost.

RULE OF THE MARQUISES

Labouchere on the Political Situation in Great Britain.

Determined Opposition to the Government to be Inaugurated.

Labouchere in Truth on the 28th ult., said: "The Marquises seem to have settled our affairs to their satisfaction. While the Conservative Marquis is to be Prime Minister, the Liberal Marquis is to sit opposite him, but to support him. Thus the triumph of the "classes" is secured for the moment. Let us be thankful that Providence has vouchsafed to us Marquises and such like august beings to take care of us. I return thanks humbly and gratefully for these and kindred mercies. How long is the regime of the Marquises likely to last? The Conservative Marquis has a minority of his own direct followers in the House of Commons and can only hope to remain in office if the Liberal Marquis finds a sufficient number of Liberals ready to support a Conservative Government. Their sole bond of union is a determination to decline to assent to those concessions to Irish aspirations that the vast majority of the Liberals of the United Kingdom have declared to be wise and legitimate. The Marquis of Salisbury proposes that the alliance should last twenty years. I am inclined to think that twenty weeks is nearer the duration.

THE OUTCOME OF THE ELECTION

so far is that a Government is to be installed in office whose general principles do not command the majority. In consideration of Ireland not being governed as she wishes, we are not to be governed as we wish. Almost the entire Irish representation has declared for Home Rule; therefore Ireland is not to have Home Rule. The majority of the electors of Great Britain and Ireland have declared for a Liberal Government, so they are to have a Conservative Government. Why do I think this beneficent arrangement will not last long? Probably Lord Hartington does not desire office. In a parliamentary sense he is older than Mr. Gladstone. In the course of nature his translation to the House of Lords cannot be very far distant, but I doubt whether many Unionists ever contemplated falling between two stools, still more, whether, now this has been their fate, they will not sit quietly on the ground for long. I estimate Lord Hartington's personal following at about half that of Mr. Chamberlain. About six of the rest of the Unionists are isolated atoms, who have drifted into

and will be glad to go out of it. At the next general election it is not likely that they will be supported by the Conservatives, to whose votes they owe their present return; while unless they make peace with the Liberal party they will not obtain the support of the Liberals. These reeds shaken by the wind will probably soon bow to the orthodox wind. If the country be Tory, by all means let the government be Tory; if not, let it be Liberal. I object to a small band of men calling themselves Liberals, elected by Conservative votes, being absolute masters of both Tories and Liberals. This is the government of a minority with a vengeance. The country has not declared its confidence in Lord Hartington; why, then, should he be the arbiter of our destinies? But on other grounds I hold that it is our duty to exhaust every means to make an anti-Home Rule government impossible. We have solemnly declared that Ireland has a right to a domestic parliament. The Tories refuse to do this justice to Ireland. When Pharoah declined to let the Israelites go, Moses but sent down plagues upon the Egyptians. We must follow his example. Lord Salisbury must not sleep on a bed of roses. We must be the militant party. By resolutions, by bills, by amendments we must break up this unholy alliance, whose bond of union is the coercion of our fellow-countrymen. We must get back to the constitutional practice that the party in office is the party which has the majority in the House of Commons. The Irish must stand by us if they hope that we permanently shall stand by them. From the Conservatives they will never get Home Rule. They will be foolish indeed if they will sell their inheritance for a mess or two of pottage. Mr. Gladstone has created a Home Rule party in England. He has accepted defeat for himself and his party on this issue. For the Irish to desert him now would be a crime, nay worse than a crime. We must organize. We have a radical platform, of which Home Rule will be but a plank. The democracies of the two islands must give to each other a hand. We have our grievances; the Irish have theirs. To remedy both must be our cry. Mr. Gladstone intends to remain at the head of the opposition. He will take an active part in the debates, and be in the House as much as his strength allows. In his absence the opposition will be led by Sir William Harcourt."

DID NOT STOP AT TRIFLES,

The sportsman in purchasing his powder should be specially careful in seeing that he gets from his dealer the GENUINE PACKAGES of Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey. Very inferior powder is often sold at apparently cheap prices under the name of DIAMOND GRAIN, but Messrs. Curtis's & Harvey are the original manufacturers and proprietors of the justly celebrated DIAMOND GRAIN POWDER.
